

The Sun Takes Everything it Brings —

Once, on a train, I sat next to a man who couldn't even shake my hand, because God told him not to,

and he told me the best things to know were facts; that was how we learned. Fact: we are a set of spiraling numbers, and our bones grow in ratio 2:3:5:8.

Our lives move by turns of phi, like a pinecone, endless patterns reaching for sun rays and the chips of sun fall frozen in an arch above our heads and reaching hands.

Campus Broadsided @ UAF

Jonnell Liebl is an MFA candidate in poetry at the University of Alaska Fairbanks. Artist Casey Bickford is a University of Alaska Fairbanks graduate specializing in biological sciences.

Campus Broadsided is an independent creative project affiliated with Broadsided Press.
See all locations: broadsidedpress.org/campus